GRIFFITH PLEADS WITH BAN JOHNSON TO LIFT SUSPENSION OF MILAN

It Is Hoped That Linden Lad Will Be Back in Center Field Tomorrow or Friday at the La test—Ray Morgan Misses Train From St. Louis to Chicago.

By THOMAS KIRBY.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Clark Griffith today called at the office of Ban Johnson to personally plead for the lifting of the ban on Clyde Milan. While the manager himself is willing to endure banishment for the part he had in the trouble with Umpire O'Loughlin, he does not think Milan deserving of such punishment as has been meted out. It is hoped that Milan will be back tomorrow or Friday. The first notice will come from the umpire.

Jack Ryan, who quietly visited the Federal Park at St. Louis yesterday reported to his manager there were hardly enough spectators to pay the attaches of the park, leaving aside players salaries, hotel bills and other expenses.

Ray Morgan missed the train at St. Louis last night, but will be here in time for the game today.

Those who saw the Griffins make their great effort in the closing days of the season at home, and who followed them to Boston and New York, would never have recognized the team at St. Louis as the same that set the pace on other trails. Real baseball by a visiting team in St. Louis under the conditions that the Nationals encountered was an utter impossibility.

This is not an alibi for the defeats that have been recorded, for it was pointed out the morning after the game that unless there was a change, the Nationals did not utterly collapse at St. Louis, the showing was a dead, sickly one. Of the four starts they topped one—that with Johnson at the helm. The other three were defeats, and all due to wavering in practically every department of the game in which they had been showing themselves such apt students. The first 1914 stop at St. Louis will not soon be forgotten by Clark Griffith and corporation.

Probably the enforced absence of the fiery leader, had something to do with it, for the fact remains that there was less dash and drive in the team yesterday than they showed at any time in the month.

The team, in its various parts, was absolutely lacking in steadiness. Joe Engel, while he remained on the mound, pitched as well as he has at any other time this season. His control was much better than it usually is; still, one of the runs came from a base on balls, and the score that finally developed into the decisive one came from the pitcher himself musing up a punt that should have been an out by five yards.

Of the five hits that were made off Engel, two were home runs. The first of the "warriors" was made by Pratt, when he swung the man ahead of him to go through with a swing. It appeared as though the batter could not reach the ball with an ear, but he swiped it on the end of the bat, and the next solid thing it struck was a seat in the bleachers. The other homer resulted in Moeller, out of his place, misjudging a fly that Milan would ordinarily have had in his pocket.

Even in the defeat, there was one bright light in the work of Harry Harper, who pitched the final third of the game. After Engel had given way to a hitter.

Harper showed as much or more than did Bentley the previous day, for he did not allow a clean hit in the two innings in which he worked, although the Browns did beat out a couple of infield boppers that were a credit to the men off whose bats they bopped. Harper struck out two, and, on the whole, his work was particularly encouraging, especially in view of that fact it was about all the real work he has been called upon to do in championship games since the season was ushered in.

Johnson went in in place of McBride with two out in the ninth, and had he gotten on "Frog," Nott would have made his debut as a National. At least one bat and was to hit for Harper. Johnson struck out, however.

In Chicago the Nationals are quartered at the Chicago Beach Hotel, which is so much an improvement over St. Louis that a comparison is impossible. The inmates here in Missouri took all the life and ambition out of the game, but here they are on the lake shore, where there is always a breeze, and as such as they can get in from the water, they can jump into real water, instead of the water in St. Louis, that would move his clothes.

The thermometer, in St. Louis showed 84. This means that the men on the field were flashing around with the mercury hovering around the century mark.

The recalling of Gallia from Kansas City means, as exclusively announced in these columns yesterday, that before the passing of another month, at least one of the pitchers will be sent back to a minor league club. Who will go is one of the mysteries of the camp.

Although out of position, Dan Moeller was here for a magnificent springing catch off Pratt in the third. It was a drive which called for all speed at hand, but of second importance, he was able to grab it back so fast that a few moments later he hesitated before he pitched. He barely emerging from the pitcher's box, he went for a home run, playing the sun field was an unusual experience for the pitcher. In the fourth he lost Leary's fly, and the runner was safe.

The Griffins allowed the Browns to go to the front in the fifth by contributing a couple of errors. Shotten offered a punt that Engel suggested like a crack shot. Then Morgan booted a grounded ball, Shotten to breeze in from second.

Wally Smith was used as an emergency hitter in place of Acosta. He doubtfully gave the Nationals a run, but he did not.

The Nationals made two clean hits in the eighth, when a double play and first base error kept the runner out, but promised to at least even the count.

With C. Walker on first in the eighth, Gandil slumbered when Harper threw a try to nip the runner. The first baseman, however, was not to be taken in, and he tried to return to the bag. Instead the runner darted to second.

The suspensions of Griffith and Milan are indefinite, they are expected to return to the series at Chicago as a result of their run-in with O'Loughlin Monday.

Gandil injured his left wrist in sliding back to first in the second. He wore a heavy bandage during the remainder of the afternoon.

After Foster had shoved his team to the front with a triple in the third, the Griffins proceeded to drop the honors to the Browns in the fourth and fifth. Ernest Walker, brother of Dixie Walker, showed a fast one out over Dan Moeller's head for four corners. The scene was all ready for the prize bout of the day in the next frame.

Shotten, who was in the fourth, stole as Austin fanned. Ernest Walker's roller made Morgan look foolish, as he shoten kept right on and scored the run that gave his team the victory. The score:

Fastening the main sheet of the Defiance to the boom for today's first race with the Resolute and the Vanitie to select a defender against Lipton's Shamrock IV, challenger for the America's Cup, the blue ribbon of yachting supremacy.

GRIFFMEN EXPECTED TO SET NEW RECORD

Johnson Drew the Biggest Throng to Navin Field to Date on May 18, 1913.

DETROIT, Mich., June 10.—When the Washington Senators show up here they are expected to hang up a new attendance record for Navin Field. They hold the present mark, 24,455, drawn to see Carl Zamocho battle Walter Johnson on Sunday, May 18, 1913, and when they play here on Sunday, June 21, it is expected that a larger crowd than that will see the clash. Now that both the Tigers and the Senators are fighting up around the top of the procession, they are the best drawing cards in the American League.

Last Sunday's crowd of 20,559 at Navin Field stands fourth in the list of big attendances at the Tigers stadium, falling slightly less than 4,000 short of the record made Sunday, May 18, 1913, when a game between the Tigers and Washington, with Walter Johnson pitching against Zamocho, attracted 24,455.

The next largest crowd was that of opening day, April 20, 1912, the first game ever played at Navin Field. This event brought out 23,552. The next day another mammoth throng was on hand, the paid count then being 22,495.

Record throngs at Navin Field follow: Sunday, April 21, 1912, 24,352; Sunday, June 7, 1914, 20,559; Opening day, April 14, 1914, 20,142; Old Bennett Park record, April 15, 1900, 18,474.

Wheat's Perfect Throw Enables Robins to Win

White Sox Manage to Clean Up Entire Series
CHICAGO, June 10.—The Yankees dropped the last game of the series here to the White Sox, not getting a single contest. The final battle was a swat-fest in which the home team produced the better walling in the pinches. Cicotte was driven from the slab after four innings, and Scott was touched up freely. The score:

Clean Shave for Bouts.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—Prize fighting had a narrow escape from being crossed off this city's program of future entertainments today, when the board of supervisors voted 9 to 8 to revoke all fight permits. Under the charter, 10 votes were necessary to adopt the resolutions, and one member of the board was absent.

HAYDEN GREW PEEVED

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 10.—Jack Hayden and his Louisville warriors, quartered at a downtown hotel, were waiting for a bus to carry them to League Park.

A well-dressed stranger, radiating undeniable symptoms of the baseball bug, edged his passage through a cluster of Colonels to where Manager Hayden was waiting.

"Beg pardon, but aren't you Branch Rickey, of the St. Louis Browns?"

"Wot tha h—! Who? Rickey? Browns! G-r-u-u-h! Suh, I'll have you to understand that this is the Louisville baseball club. Get that? Baseball club! We're in the American Association, and we're better than at least seven other clubs in that league. And I—why, I'm Jack Hayden, boss of the Colonels."

But before Hayden's wrath had begun to subside the indiscreet stranger was several squares from the hotel.

It was quite evident that the Browns are still the official butt for jests, despite their recent threats to improve.

TIGERS BREAK EVEN WITH WORLD CHAMPS

Mackmen Support Shawkey in Brilliant Fashion and Land the Final Contest.

DETROIT, Mich., June 10.—The Jun-galeers were able only to break even with the world's champions after grabbing the first brace of contests. Yesterday's game went to the Mackmen, who backed up the erratic Shawkey in brilliant fashion. Moeller's stop of Cobb's terrific drive in the eighth, doubling Moriarty at second, was the individual play of the game. Ty Cobb stole home in the fourth while Shawkey was winding up. Baker's homer in the second frame was his second in as many days. The score:

Red Sox Clean Up Series
CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 10.—The Red Sox made a clean sweep of the series with the Naps, when the latter outfit went to pieces absolutely in the sixth. Three of the visitors' runs were forced across by the wildness of Collins, Wagner and Blanding. Cooper pitched good ball for the Red Sox, but Combs blew up in the ninth. The score:

Overland Track Opens After Eight Years' Rest
DENVER, June 10.—For the first time in eight years, except for a brief attempt at racing three years ago, a race meeting will be held at the old Overland track here beginning next Saturday. Running horses numbering 30 are here for the meeting which will continue until July 4.

The promoters plan a combination running and harness race meeting. The first six days two harness events will be on the program. Thereafter the cards will be made up of running events exclusively. This will be the first race meeting held under the new Colorado horse racing law which licenses such events. Under the law, pari-mutuel betting is allowed. Overland track was built in 1883 and meetings were held annually until boot-making was forbidden in 1906.

All Details of Bout Settled; Ritchie Is Off
NEW YORK, June 10.—After considerable jockeying for position, not to mention ultimatums and protocols, the Ritchie-Welsh championship fight is agreed upon with the regulation 12 tape forefights. Forefights have been posted, and Ritchie will sail for Europe today on the Aquitania, accompanied by his manager, Emil Thierly, and several friends. The match will be staged at the London Olympia on July 4.

Freak Betting Increases On International Matches
NEW YORK, June 10.—Betting on the outcome of the polo series quickened somewhat in the financial district yesterday, but no large wagers were placed. Freak bets seemed to be in favor than straight bets on the series. In Fred Schumm's $500 to $250 was wagered on the American team to defeat its opponent. Several other smaller bets were made at the same odds. The betting is even money that the American team wins the first game and also $100 to $200 that the first game will not be played Saturday.

A bet of $400 to $500 on the Resolute to win today's race between the three America's Cup candidates was reported yesterday.

WAGNER GETS HIS 3,000TH BASE HIT

Pittsburgh Veteran's Double Results in Only Run Mayers Allows Visitors.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—By getting a safety in the game which Philadelphia won from Pittsburgh by 3 to 1, John Henry Wagner, the grand old man of baseball, registered his 3,000th base hit as a major league player. Wagner's 3,000th bingle came in the ninth inning. He had stood at the plate three times before. The first time Mayer passed him. The second trip he hit a ball that Magee fumbled—probably some scorers might have stretched a point and credited the ancient shortstop with a scratch safety of the infield variety, but that would have marred the record. Anyhow, Honus settled the chance for an argument on his last appearance.

Like a shot out of a cannon, he smashed the sphere to left field. It was on a line, several feet over Magee's head, and hit about five yards in front of Becker. The ball hopped high, continued over the left fielder's head to the bleacher wall, and it was there that the May-haired pitcher planted himself on second base. The crowd cheered with as much honest vim and delight as if the hit had been a homer made by Cravath, Loderus, or Magee, of the home club. And Wagner was as happy as a boy with a new toy.

Won six and lost six so far on the road.

But the Griffins are glad to have escaped from those Browns.

The gink who pitched Rickey's team for soft ones should be hanged.

The Mackmen managed to break even with the Jungaleers, thanks to their swatting.

Though his timely hitting won Monday's game, "Shag" Thompson was benched by Connie Mack yesterday.

"Rags" O'Loughlin is up to his old tricks again, suspending players to keep up his high average for the same with his boss.

"Cutie" Morgan's boot let in the winning tally yesterday, but how about those timely wallopers that never came at other stages of the contest?

Bill Carrigan's Red Sox made a clean sweep of the Napslanders, showing them still farther back in the race. Nobody has any pity for the Naps.

"Slim" Salles won a fine pitching duel from Al Demaree yesterday at the Polo Grounds, enduring the hot pace just a wee bit better than the Giant.

The Griffins must hustle now to keep ahead of the Jungaleers. Meanwhile, watch those Mackmen set the pace out there in front of this little old race.

According to the dope, the Federal League backers are ready to throw up the sponge unless they can buy a bunch of big league stars. The venture has proved a failure.

After playing three light-hitting games, the Yankees and White Sox mixed up in a swatting bee yesterday, twenty-two hits being chalked up. Such is life on big league diamonds.
